If you've ever savored the splendor of southern Kenya in Amboselli or Masai Mara, you'll be compelled to continue your exploration further south. Tanzania boasts the most extensive congregation of land mammals on the planet, many of which have recently given birth and are now migrating northward after the rains. With conservation areas like Tarangire and Lake Manyara National Park, the opportunities for capturing unforgettable and remarkable images are abundant. Factor in the Ngorongoro Crater, and you're in for an extraordinary experience. Drawing from our extensive research and three consecutive years of following the migration in Kenya, we can confidently assure you that this trip will be immensely thrilling. Join us in Tanzania and immerse yourself in the allure of the African landscape adorned with acacia trees and the occasional baobab tree, alongside thousands of wandering mammals in pursuit of grazing lands. Following them are a series of hungry predators looking for their next meal. After exploring Tanzania we'll continue to explore Amboselli followed by Tsavo East and West then Nairobi National Park. Come and join the excitement as we travel through Tanzania and Kenya on this unique photo adventure.

Thank you for joining us on this trip.
